What does retirement mean to you?

Retirement means different things to different people: financial independence, a lifestyle, a life stage. Some say life begins at retirement, the time when you're finally free to listen to your heart and follow your dreams. You may want to go back to school, live a carefree life overseas, re-ignite old passions, find new ones . . . the decades of hard work are over, and now the possibilities are endless.

No matter what retirement means to you, though, planning is key. This includes accumulating wealth, managing health, developing hobbies. The earlier you start, the sooner you'll arrive. On the other hand, a journey without a plan could take you away from the destination you want to reach. This booklet brings together insights and information to help you set a course for the future, safe in the knowledge that, for you and your loved ones, the best is yet to come.

Hong Kong people's retirement planning priorities

Different places have different retirement policies with regard to retirement age, benefits, welfare, medicine, etc. Other than personal preferences and expectations, people in Hong Kong should pay particular attention to the 3 main criteria below.

When to retire

Hong Kong has no statutory retirement age. Except on valid grounds recognised by the law, citizens cannot withdraw their MPF funds until they retire at the age of 65. Benefits for the elderly such as the Senior Citizen Card and other subsidies are not available until they are in the 60-70 age bracket. With the right wealth management plan in place, however, we are free to set an earlier retirement age. The main hurdle is, of course, the end of a steady income. If you want to retire 10 years early, for example, you'd need an extra 10 years' worth of retirement savings. That's why it's important to start formulating a comprehensive retirement strategy today that encompasses physical and psychological health management, lifestyle preferences, wealth management and protection solutions, and take the future into your own hands.

Medical protection

With medical advances comes longevity. The average lifespan of Hong Kong people, already among the longest in the world, remains on an upward trend. According to a Department of Health report, the average life expectancy in Hong Kong has risen from 67.8 for men and 75.3 for women in 1971 to 82.2 and 88.1 respectively in 2019¹. While longer life is no doubt a good thing, an ageing population necessarily means increasing demands on public healthcare resources. Take internal medicine as an example. From 1 October 2019 to 30 September 2020, Hong Kong public hospitals reported 132,382 new outpatient cases, which translated into a waiting period of over 2 years². When planning our retirement, it's crucial that we ensure a large enough reserve for both public and private-sector medical services in the future.

Financial readiness

Choosing the right financial tools and growing your wealth consistently can give you more options when it's time to decide where and how to live after your retirement.

Financial independence is not a distant dream. If you're now 30 and plan to retire at 60, you have 30 years to put your plan into action and make use of the right financial tools to create a steady retirement income and give yourself more options in the future. The second half of your life can be infinitely rewarding. Plan it right, and you may go even farther than you imagine.

The 5 stages of retirement¹

Retirement is a slow, gradual psychological journey, involving as many changes as other key transitions such as adolescence, marriage and parenthood. We spend approximately 2,000 hours at work each year. That's a sudden surplus of 2,000 hours a year after retirement, a radical departure from the deeply embedded routines and rhythms of our working life that is characterised by 5 key psychological changes.

1. Pre-retirement: the planning stage

While you're working, you may understand that you need a retirement reserve but seldom have time to give it much thought. By starting early, however, and working out how much you need for living expenses, entertainment, travel and more, you're taking a decisive step towards formulating a comprehensive retirement plan that would eventually allow you to retire with security rather than uncertainty.

“Cooper Mitchell, financial advisor at Dane Financial LLC in Missouri, USA, has said: “Life is not measured by the number in your bank account, but the memories you create.” And the recipe for a wealth of cherished memories is early planning and timely actions, which will enable you to create the most favourable conditions.”

2. Post-retirement: the honeymoon

Released from the constant pressures of the workplace, retirees often experience a temporary, exhilarating sense of freedom. Many would immediately go about realising some of their short-term goals, like travelling, catching up with old friends and doing the things they never had time for before. The honeymoon period is characterised by optimism and excitement, and how long it lasts depends on how well-prepared you are financially and psychologically.

3. Disenchantment

With most to-do items now in the “Done” column, you would find a lot of time on your hands. The new routine, minus a steady income, could have a sobering effect: the initial euphoria would start to wear off, and you might gradually become disillusioned about retirement life. If you can't set yourself new goals, you could end up feeling lost, and depression might set in.

4. Reorientation

As long as you can come to terms with your new identity as a retiree, reset your social compass so that your friends are no longer limited to people from work, and establish a new direction for the future, you'll find new meaning in your retirement and build a way of life that's right for you.

5. Routine

Once you've defined a new role for yourself in your family or society, along with a new lifestyle and a long-term goal, such as looking after your grandchildren, doing volunteer work or pursuing a new hobby, you've made the necessary emotional adjustment for a smooth transition to a new life. Having determined the “what”, you can start looking for the “how”. It's a good idea to start with your daily life, hobbies and health when adjusting to the “new normal” of retirement.

Overcoming psychological obstacles

Retirement life is accompanied by changes, such as ageing, declining health and the passing of one's peers, that can be stressful for retirees. Financially, the absence of a steady income, having to keep a tight rein on your spending, becoming dependent on your children when you used to be the breadwinner, a growing reliance on government benefits, all these could take a psychological toll. That's why, for some retirees, the transition from Reorientation to Routine is tougher than expected. Careful pre-retirement planning, however, can help provide a buffer against these challenges.

Going back to school – a new milestone awaits²

As they say, you never stop learning, and retirement is a great time for satisfying your thirst for knowledge. In the past, we've most likely chosen our university majors based on employment prospects, enrolling in a degree programme that was not entirely consistent with our personal interests. The second time around, when practical considerations no longer apply, we can learn what we like. Whether you're interested in film, archaeology, art, photography, drama, music, cultural studies or anything else, being back on campus can not only rekindle your passion for learning but let you rebuild your social circle by making friends who share your interest. For knowledge-seekers, it's an important milestone on the journey to a fulfilling retirement.

Further studies in HK

A number of universities in Hong Kong and their affiliated institutions offer a variety of programmes², including paper art, Western painting, Chinese pharmacology, materials science, electrical engineering, mechanical engineering and more, so retirees can stop working and start learning.

Look to the world

Overseas universities offer many interesting and specialised degree and diploma programmes, such as forestry science, entomology and embroidery art. For anyone who is interested, spending time living and studying abroad would make for an enriching, memorable experience.

Distant learning

The internet has broken down so many geographical boundaries, you can now enrol in online courses offered by institutions around the world in the comfort of your own home. Look for courses you're interested in on popular platforms like edX, Coursera and Open2Study. The Science of Happiness (University of California at Berkeley, US), Social Services for Families, Seniors and Those with Disabilities (Columbia University, US), Graduate Certificate in Addiction Studies for Health Professionals (University of Tasmania, Australia) are just a few examples of the options on offer. Whether you're pursuing a personal interest, looking for something with practical application or getting drawn to academic research, there's bound to be something for you.

Rebuilding your social circle

As we grow older, we tend to become less open to making new friends, and our social life might become increasingly uneventful as a result. Has it occurred to you that, with the knowledge and experience you've accumulated over the years, there is a lot you can contribute to new friendships? Expanding your social circle and interacting with friends can also stimulate brain activity, delay ageing and help you keep up with the trends.

Sociologists categorise social life into primary groups, secondary groups, collective groups and categories¹. Within the context of everyday life, our social circle can be divided into family, lovers, companions, friends, partners, relatives and peers, and subdivided into passing acquaintances, close friends, etc., covering different spheres of life. Whatever the definition, our post-retirement social life should include more like-minded individuals for mutual support and encouragement as well as more life-enriching connections.

1. Wikipedia - Types of social groups

Creating your own social network webpage

Artistic creation is a solitary pursuit, but a social network webpage can be the result of a joint effort by you and your friends. You're free to design the page and set the theme in just the way you want to attract like-minded individuals to join you, share their experiences and forge new friendships.

Even though you no longer have a regular income after retirement, you can still look for opportunities for part-time work you're interested in. Writing, making videos or doing live broadcasts on social media, these can all generate an income stream. As long as you can produce contents that strike a chord with the audience, who says you can't become a KOL yourself?

Developing lifelong passions

Professor Lung Ying Tai once said, "Learn to play, develop lifelong interests. Otherwise, when you eventually retire or are replaced by artificial intelligence, you will have nothing."²

Hobbies can bring more balance, greater substance and better health to your life. But how do you find out what you love? Try following the suggestions below.

Write down what you like

Reading, travelling, dancing, these are all hobbies. Try to describe them in greater detail, eg you like reading detective novels or scientific journals, want to join photography tours or cultural expeditions, love street dance or ballroom dance. This can give you a more in-depth understanding of what you love.

Some activities require the right weather conditions or other participants. You need an opponent, for example, for a game of badminton, and water sports are mainly for summer. That's why the more hobbies you can identify, the more activities you can take part in, and the fuller your schedule will be.

Develop interests into enduring passions

Write blogs, manage a social network webpage, go hiking, play golf. If you find that you're persisting at something despite setbacks, you've found your lifelong passion.

Stay curious, be eager to learn

Not having the right skills often makes us give up on an area of interest we would otherwise have continued to explore. For example, if you're fascinated by the wonders of the underwater world but can't swim or scuba dive, you might well miss the opportunity to discover a new passion. That's why we need to stay curious and be ready to acquire new skills to expand the scope of our potential lifelong interests.

Photography

There are many photography enthusiasts. If you're one of them, you can turn your passion into a full-time pursuit in your retirement. Sharing images in photography forums, starting themed photography viral challenges, getting your friends together for photo outings or studio shoots, exchanging photography techniques and organising mini-exhibitions, all these could help turn you into an accomplished amateur photographer. Your passion could even turn into a second career, allowing you to offer your works for rent or sale, teach classes and generate an income by doing what you love.

Becoming a volunteer

You have much to contribute to community volunteer groups that welcome senior citizens. With your work experience, helping others would be easy. You can take part in youth counselling while developing a deeper understanding of the needs of more senior citizens. Different volunteer groups have different service mandates. Choose a cause that's close to your heart and you could well thrive in the company of kindred spirits. As a bridge between generations, retirees can meet people, make friends and add delightful new twists to their life stories.

Staying healthy, having fun

Your quality of life after retirement depends as much on health as it does on wealth. Many retirees prefer more laid-back activities, but if you can include an active, physically involving element in your routine, you will have a great way to pass the time while staying in shape.

Hiking

Take your active lifestyle to a new level. Hong Kong's country parks offer dozens of hiking trails, each with different scenery and characteristics. Leave the bustle of the city behind, embrace the great outdoors with friends and fellow hiking enthusiasts. It's a great way to expand your social circle and horizon.

According to a Leisure and Cultural Services Department report entitled "Healthy Exercise For All Campaign – Physical Fitness Test for the Community"¹, hiking is one of the most popular physical activities in Hong Kong. It's a medium-intensity aerobic exercise. Hiking for 150 minutes or longer each week can boost your cardio-pulmonary health and blood circulation, lower the risks of cardio-vascular diseases, diabetes, high blood pressure, stroke and some cancers. It's also a good way to burn calories and maintain your optimal body weight.

Let's dance!

Dancing is popular with people of all ages and is characterised by a wide variety of styles, such as ballroom dance, Latin dance, folk dance, street dance and many more, each with a large following across different age groups. Dancing for at least 30 minutes every day (can be broken up into segments of no less than 10 minutes each) has the following health benefits²:

- ✓ Boosts cardio-pulmonary functions and increases blood circulation
- ✓ Contributes to more flexible, supple joints and lowers the risks of injury or falling
- ✓ Increases muscle strength and reduces the risk of osteoporosis
- ✓ Lowers the risks of cardiovascular diseases, high blood pressure, stroke and diabetes, plus some cancers such as colorectal cancer
- ✓ Relieves pressure, increases self-confidence and psychological health
- ✓ Expands one's social circle
- ✓ Helps burn calories and maintain optimal body weight

Travel

With so much free time in your retirement, you can hike not only around Hong Kong but across borders. Your odyssey can take you from Victoria Peak to Mount Fuji, from Thousand Islands in Tai Lam Chung to Thousand Island Lake in Taiwan, all the way to the spectacular Cliffs of Moher in Ireland. You can go whale-watching in Seattle, catch the Northern Lights in Iceland . . . along the way, you will develop not only a healthy body but a wealthy heart. Travel has no age restrictions and anyone can start accumulating travel experiences from a young age. The world is full of fascinating peoples and places that are worth crossing continents and oceans for.

Scuba diving

Most joggers you see on the street are young people. Many of the scuba divers in Okinawa and at the Great Barrier Reef, however, are elderly who want to catch up with the clownfish and drop in on the giant turtles. Water has buoyancy, so swimming and diving place less stress on joints and bones, making it an ideal activity for senior citizens and people with old injuries. Swimming is also a whole-body exercise that trains all the major muscle groups in the body. If you're one of the retirees who are young at heart, the underwater world can be your playground. There's no need to worry about the difficulty either; scuba diving can be even easier to learn than swimming.

Popular activities – costs and expenses

Embracing hobbies can open up new vistas on your life journey. But taking regular trips to exotic diving hotspots, travelling far and wide with full gear to capture stunning images, or twirling and swirling your way from local ballrooms to international dance floors to compete against the best, all these require a significant investment. Exactly how far you can go has much to do with how well you've planned your retirement.

Adequate exercise for a healthy future

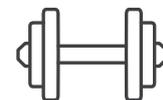

For an adult, exercise encompasses everyday activities at home, in the office and within the community. These include walking, cycling, doing household chores, working, playing games, working out and taking part in competitive sports, etc. For people over 65 who are in average physical condition and can exercise freely, the Leisure and Cultural Services Department provides the following guidelines⁹:

At least 150 minutes of medium-intensity aerobic exercise per week, or 75 minutes of high-intensity aerobic exercise, or an equivalent combination of the two.

For greater health benefits, increase your weekly medium-intensity exercise to 300 minutes per week, or your high-intensity aerobic exercise to 150 minutes, or an equivalent combination of the two.

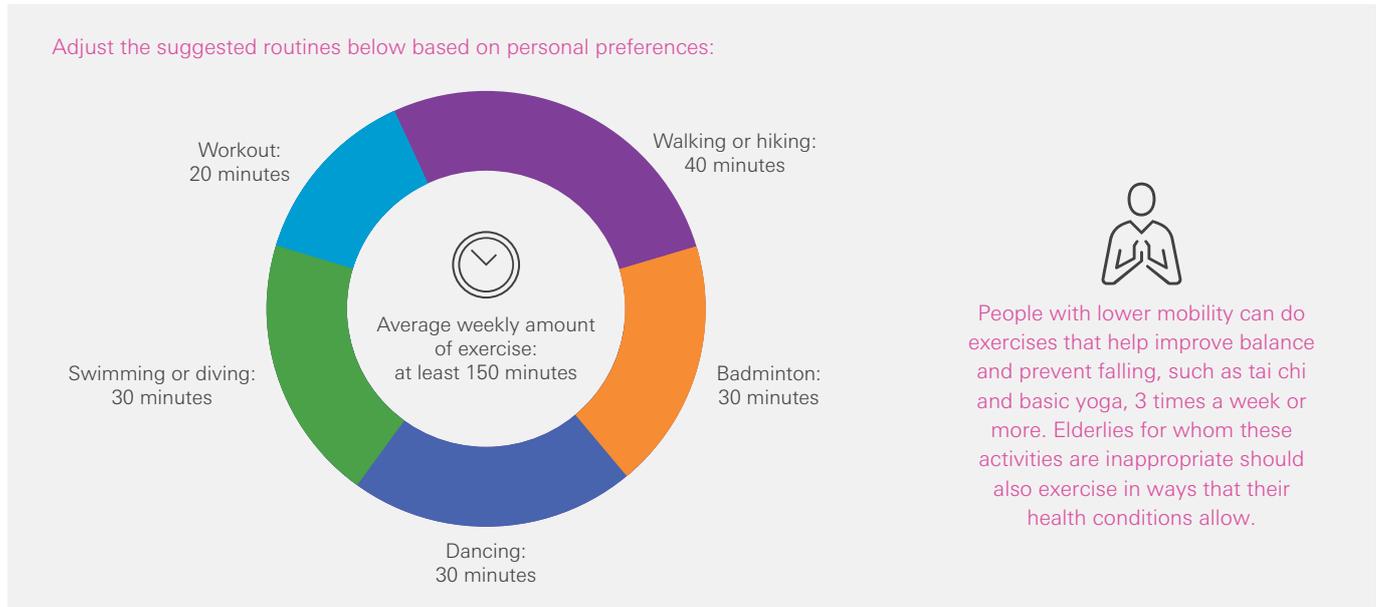

On at least 2 days a week, undergo enhanced training targeted at the major muscle groups, including chest, shoulders, upper back, lower back, abs, buttocks, thighs and lower legs.

An average of 150 minutes per week. How to allocate your time?

Target heart rate¹⁰

The American Heart Association defines exercise intensity based on heart rates: 50-70% of your maximum heart rate indicates moderate exercise intensity, while 70-85% designates vigorous exercise intensity. For the average person, the maximum heart rate is approximately 220 minus age. If you're 30 years old, for example, your maximum heart rate is 220-30=190 (heart beats/minute). In other words, to reach moderate exercise intensity, your heart should be beating 95-133 times a minute.

Target exercise heart rates for different age groups

Age	Average maximum heart rate (per min.) 100%	Moderate exercise intensity heart rate (per min.) 50-70%	Vigorous exercise intensity heart rate (per min.) 70-85%
30	190	95-133	133-162
35	185	93-130	130-157
40	180	90-126	126-153
45	175	88-123	123-149
50	170	85-119	119-145
55	165	83-116	116-140
60	160	80-112	112-136
65	155	78-109	109-132

Note: The appropriate amount of exercise for each person varies according to age, lifestyle habits, health condition, personal and family medical history and other factors. Please seek professional advice.

Ideal retirement destinations

Where do you want to retire to?

The more you know today, the better you can plan your future. And a sufficient retirement reserve will allow you to cast your net wider in the search for your dream retirement destination. During this search, a number of factors would typically come into play, including culture, lifestyle, distance from family and friends. The below table shows the similarities and differences between some of the most preferred retirement destinations.

Ranking the world’s top retirement destinations

Using a number of retirement indices, International Living, the US lifestyle magazine, has compiled a list of the world’s 25 best places to retire⁷ for 2021. The 3 highest scores go to Portugal, Panama and Mexico. Of the 25 countries and territories on the list, only Malaysia, Vietnam, Cambodia, Bali, Thailand and Sri Lanka are in Asia. While some other countries might seem far away to Hong Kong people, they provide useful data for reference when you’re researching retirement destinations. Use the following 10 criteria to help you determine your ideal retirement spot.

Simon chose HSBC Income Goal Deferred Annuity Plan³ and HSBC Voluntary Health Insurance Flexi Plan⁴ to support his retirement plan.

Simon's Hong Kong retirement plan

Simon and his wife, both 34², have a young daughter attending an international primary school. Simon is a believer in life planning, and even though he is still in his prime, he's already started his retirement planning journey. He understands that a dream retirement has 2 key ingredients: wealth and health. That's why he plans to purchase a long-term savings plan plus a flexible medical insurance policy, which will help ensure sufficient retirement savings and medical protection for when he is ready to begin the second half of his life journey.

Simon's retirement criteria:

- Steady wealth growth and a regular income
- Flexible withdrawals of monthly annuity income
- Comprehensive, flexible medical coverage
- Tax deduction

Qualifying Deferred Annuity Plan ("QDAP plan")

Issue age: 35 (age next birthday)

Annual premium:
HKD136,400

Accumulation period:
25 years

Premium payment period:
5 years

Annuity period:
15 years

Total premium paid (HKD136,400 x 5 years) =

HKD682,000

When Simon reaches 60 (age next birthday), he will start receiving his monthly annuity payment in cash and his total monthly annuity payment during the annuity period can be in excess of HKD1.7 million⁵.

Monthly guaranteed annuity payment:
HKD5,000

Initial Annuity Guaranteed Portion⁶:

All data, information and case studies provided herein are for reference only, and do not constitute any recommendation to any individual, nor should they form the basis for any personal financial decisions. Such information should not be taken as a substitute for professional advice. You should not make any decisions based solely on this information and without seeking professional opinion.
 2. Age means actual age.
 3. HSBC Income Goal Deferred Annuity Plan is a deferred annuity insurance policy offering features certified by the Insurance Authority ("IA") to be compliant with its Guideline on Qualifying Deferred Annuity Policy. It is a long-term participating life insurance product with a savings element and is not equivalent or similar to any kind of bank deposit. The plan is underwritten by HSBC Life (International) Limited ("HSBC Life", "The Company") which is authorised and regulated by the IA of the Hong Kong SAR, and is intended only for sale in the Hong Kong SAR. The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation Limited ("HSBC") is an insurance agent authorised by HSBC Life. You will be subject to the credit risk of HSBC Life and your premiums paid will form part of HSBC Life's assets. You do not have any rights or ownership over any of these assets. Your recourse is against HSBC Life only. In the event that you have to fully or partially surrender your policy during the early years, you may receive an amount significantly less than the premiums paid.
 4. HSBC VHIS Flexi Plan is underwritten by the Company and it is only intended for sale through HSBC in the Hong Kong SAR. The Company is authorised and regulated by IA to carry on long-term insurance business in the Hong Kong SAR. HSBC is an insurance agent of the Company. The Company will be responsible for providing your insurance coverage, while our partner, AXA General Insurance Hong Kong Limited, will handle network management under your policy.

Assumptions:

- i. All premiums are paid in full when due throughout the premium payment period.
- ii. No withdrawal of accumulated dividends and interest (if any) under the policy and no adjustment affecting the dividends has been made during the policy term.
- iii. The declared Special Bonus has been transferred to the balance of the accumulated dividends and interest after the commencement of the Annuity Period to accumulate with interest (if any), which forms part of the non-guaranteed annuity payment.
- iv. The current interest rate used for accumulated dividends and interest is assumed at 3.2% p.a.. This interest rate is not guaranteed and may be adjusted by us at our discretion from time to time without prior notice. The actual interest rate may be lower or higher than 3.2% p.a..
- v. During the Annuity period, a Monthly Annuity Payment will be received on each Monthiversary.

- 5. Monthly Annuity Payment means Monthly Guaranteed Annuity Payment plus Monthly Non-guaranteed Annuity Payment, if any. Monthly Non-guaranteed Annuity Payment is not guaranteed and determined by the Company from time to time. The actual future amount may be lower or higher than that illustrated above.
- 6. Initial Annuity Guaranteed Portion is a rounded percentage of the Monthly Guaranteed Annuity Payment divided by the Monthly Annuity Payment and is subject to change if a re-calculation of the Monthly Non-guaranteed Annuity Payment is triggered. Please refer to Policy Provisions for detailed terms and conditions.
- 7. The Internal Rate of Returns of HSBC Income Goal Deferred Annuity Plan based on policy currency, premium payment period/method, annuity payment option, etc. The above example assumes a guaranteed Internal Rate of Returns of 0.91% and a total Internal Rate of Returns of 3.25%.
- 8. Total premium paid refers to the total amount of premiums due under the Basic Plan (whether or not actually paid) as of the date of death of the life insured. Please refer to the Policy Provisions for detailed terms and conditions.

Notes:
Tax deduction under salaries tax and personal assessment by the Inland Revenue Department of the HKSAR from premiums paid under HSBC Income Goal Deferred Annuity Plan shall be subject to your individual circumstances. It is also at the Inland Revenue Department of the HKSAR's discretion when your premiums are paid over the premium payment period.
The figures shown in the above example(s) are subject to rounding adjustment and are for illustrative purposes only. You should refer to your insurance proposal for illustrated figures and details. The actual amount of tax savings is subject to the Internal Revenue Department's review and agreement. If in doubt, please seek the advice of professional tax consultants. The above benefits are subject to the scope of coverage and protection limits of individual insurance plans and determined by HSBC Life on a case-by-case basis.

Simon’s Voluntary Health Insurance Plan

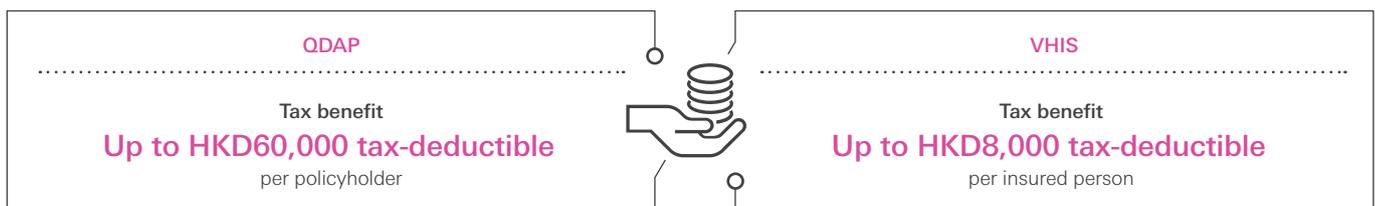

Simon is his family’s main income earner. Even though he currently has a group medical policy, he is mindful of the fact that he will have to pay for his own medical expenses after his retirement. In any case, the critical illness protection of his group policy may turn out to be insufficient. He has therefore takes up HSBC Voluntary Health Insurance Flexi Plan (“VHIS plan”) for the comprehensive medical protection it provides, thus making sure he won’t become a burden to his family if he becomes ill:

- Guaranteed renewal until age 100
- Covers unknown pre-existing conditions¹ with no waiting period
- Cashless arrangement for all private hospitals in Hong Kong ensures his peace of mind
- 90-day home nursing services to support the recovery journey
- Full coverage² of hospitalisation and surgical expenses with no sub-limits
- Covers both surgical and non-surgical cancer treatments

After taking up the plan, Simon was unfortunately found to have 3 clogged heart arteries. He subsequently underwent coronary angioplasty on his doctor’s recommendation, which required a 3-day hospital stay. In the end, his VHIS plan covered all HKD279,460 in medical expenses, shielding him completely from what would have been a heavy financial burden. What’s more, there was no waiting period, giving him the peace of mind he needed to focus on his recovery journey.

Policyholder and life insured: Simon
Annual benefit limit: HKD5,000,000 Benefit level: Bronze Annual deductible amount: Nil	Issue age: 34 (age last birthday)	Annual premium: HKD8,947
Hospitalisation and surgical fees	Actual medical expenses	Actual reimbursement under HSBC VHIS Flexi Plan
Hospital bed and meals (3 days)	HKD3,180	Full coverage
Specified medical implants and miscellaneous charges	HKD192,100 (HKD60,000×3+ HKD12,100)	Full coverage
Attending doctor’s visit fee	HKD3,180	Full coverage
Surgeon’s fee	HKD55,000	Full coverage
Operating theatre charges	HKD25,000	Full coverage
Pre- and post- confinement/ Day case procedure outpatient care	HKD1,000	Full coverage
Total expenses/ claimable amount	HKD279,460	HKD279,460 (Claim ratio 100%)

In addition, since he is a taxpayer and both his VHIS and QDAP plans are tax-deductible, he can also apply for tax deduction as part of his personal tax assessment³.

1. Pre-existing condition(s) shall mean, in respect of the insured person, any sickness, disease, injury, physical, mental or medical condition or physiological degradation, including congenital condition, that has existed prior to the policy issuance date or the policy effective date, whichever is earlier. An ordinary prudent person shall be reasonably aware of a pre-existing condition, where - (a) it has been diagnosed; (b) it has manifested clear and distinct signs or symptoms; or (c) medical advice or treatment has been sought, recommended or received. The Company may impose case-based exclusion(s) on the pre-existing condition(s) notified to the Company in the application for the plan and any subsequent information or document submitted to the Company for the purpose of the application. Unknown pre-existing condition(s) refers to any pre-existing condition(s) that the policyholder and/or insured person was not aware of and would not reasonably have been aware of at the time of application. Please refer to the Policy Provisions for the full terms and conditions.

2. Full coverage shall mean the actual amount of eligible expenses and other expenses charged and payable in accordance to the terms and benefits of this policy.

3. Tax deduction eligibility is only applicable to policyholders or his/her spouse who are Hong Kong taxpayers. Tax deduction for the qualifying premiums paid under a VHIS plan (not including levy) will be based on the premiums paid after deducting the premium discount (if any) for each year of assessment. The actual tax savings may be lower than the illustrated amount and is subject to review and agreement by the Inland Revenue Department on a case-by-case basis. For more information, please refer to www.ird.gov.hk or seek independent tax advice.

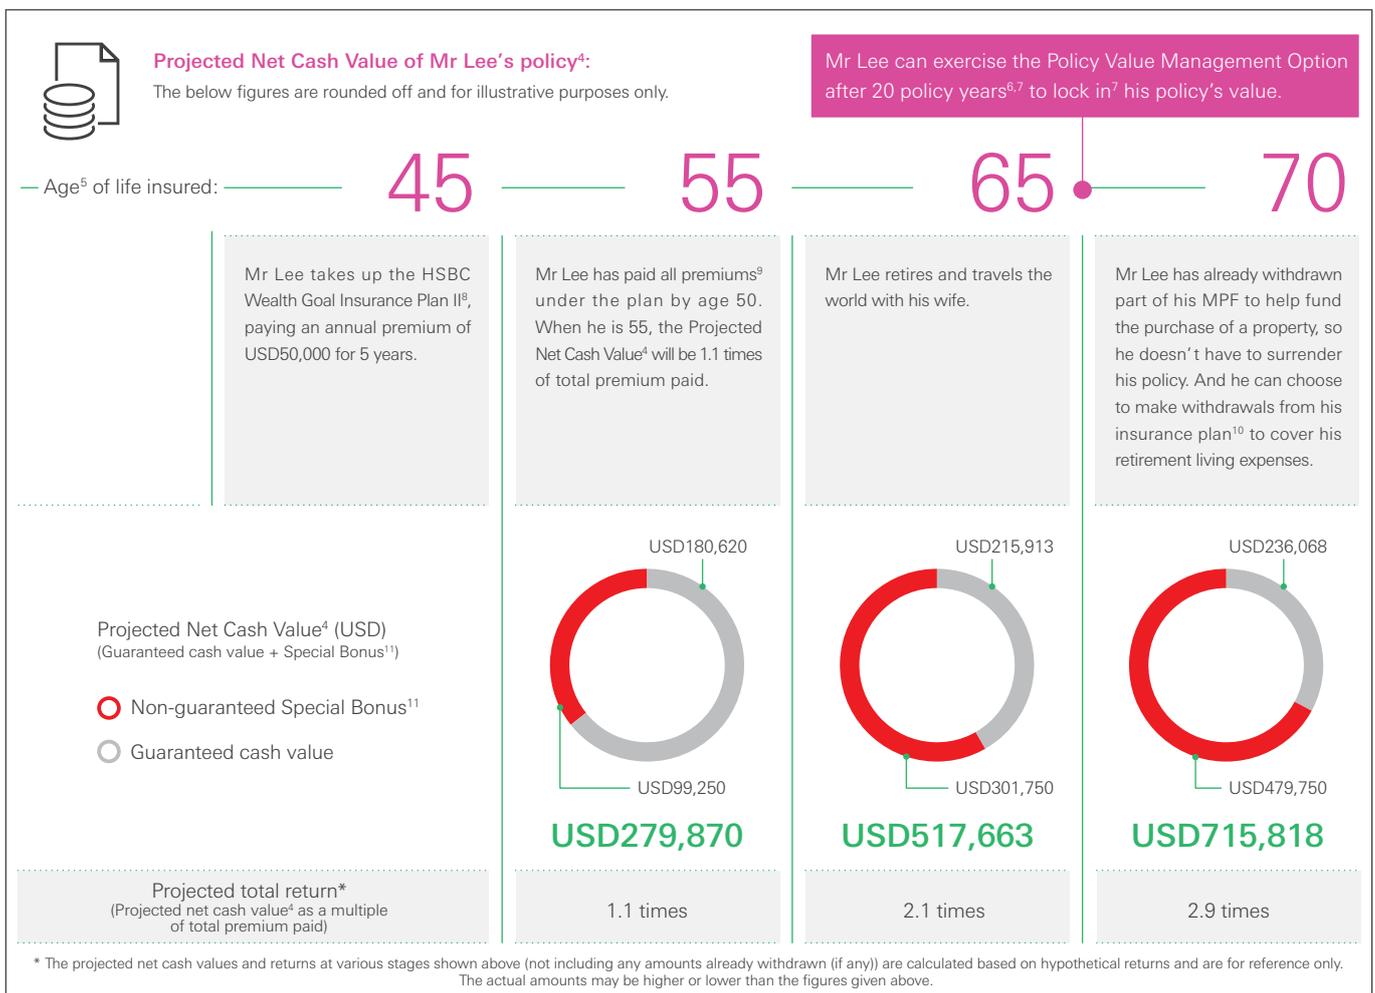

Mr Lee's overseas retirement plan

Mr Lee, 44, is a senior executive. He started planning his retirement years ago while looking for a suitable insurance policy to complement his MPF plan. He hopes to have enough money saved by the time he retires to the UK. His priorities:

-  Travel the world with his wife
-  Boost his savings to cover his increasing living expenses
-  Buy a property in the UK and enjoy his retirement

Mr Lee is able to set aside USD50,000 a year and would like to pay his premiums over 5 years. When Mr Lee retires, he will want to use his MPF to fund a portion of the purchase price of his retirement home. He also wants to be able to withdraw payment from his insurance plan to support his retirement life in the UK.

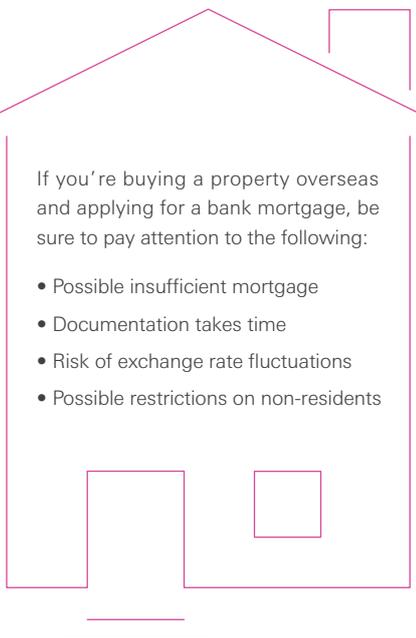

4. The Net Cash Value is, at any time, the amount equal to the Guaranteed Cash Value plus Special Bonus (if any), less any Indebtedness.
 5. The Policy Anniversary at which the Policyholder or the Life Insured is of the specified age based on age at next birthday.
 6. You may apply to exercise this Policy Value Management Option to allocate a portion of the Net Cash Value as of the date of such request is processed, to the Policy Value Management Balance provided that: i) This Policy has been in force for 20 Policy Years or more; ii) All premiums are paid up when due; and iii) There is no Indebtedness under the Policy.
 7. The exercise of the Policy Value Management Option is subject to the minimum amount requirements on (i) the Net Cash Value to be allocated per transaction; and (ii) the Policy Amount after the exercise of this option. Such minimum amount requirements are determined by the Company from time to time without prior notice to Policyholder. Cancellation, termination or reversal will not be allowed after the Policy Value Management Option is exercised. In the event that you exercise the Policy Value Management Option, the Aggregate Cash Value (an amount equal to Net Cash Value plus Policy Value Management Balance, if any) under the Policy (which is used in the calculation of the surrender value and Death Benefit under the Policy) at a future point in time may be higher or lower than it would have been if you had not chosen to exercise the option.
 8. HSBC Wealth Goal Insurance Plan II is a long-term life insurance product with a savings element. It is not equivalent or similar to any kind of bank deposit. It is underwritten by the Company and it is only intended for sale through HSBC in the Hong Kong SAR. The Company is authorised and regulated by the Insurance Authority ("IA") to carry on long-term insurance business in the Hong Kong SAR. HSBC is an insurance agency of the Company for the distribution of life insurance products in the Hong Kong SAR. The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation Limited ("HSBC") is an insurance agent authorised by HSBC Life (International) Limited ("HSBC Life"). You will be subject to the credit risk of HSBC Life and your premiums paid will form part of HSBC Life's assets. You do not have any rights or ownership over any of these assets. Your recourse is against HSBC Life only. In the event that you have to fully or partially surrender your policy in the early years, you may receive an amount significantly less than the premiums paid. All information provided herein are for reference only, and does not constitute any recommendation to any individual, nor should it form the basis of any personal financial decisions. Such information should not be taken as a substitute for professional advice. You should not make any decisions based solely on this information and without seeking professional opinion.
 9. Total Basic Plan Premium Paid refers to the total amount of premium due for the Basic Plan (whether or not actually paid) as of the date of death of the Life Insured.
 10. Cash can be taken out from the policy during the policy term by way of partial surrender as below: cash withdrawals made will be deducted from the Guaranteed Cash Value and any Special Bonus entitlement, by way of reducing the Policy Amount of the policy. With reduction of Policy Amount, the Total Premiums Paid under this policy will be adjusted and reduced proportionally and consequential adjustments will be made in the calculations of Guaranteed Cash Value, Special Bonus (if any) and Death Benefit. Regular withdrawals from the policy are subject to the following two requirements: (i) a minimum amount of USD 250 per withdrawal; and (ii) a minimum Policy Amount requirement of USD 25,000 for the policy. No withdrawal will be allowed when the Policy Amount of the policy is below the minimum Policy Amount required, which is determined by the Company from time to time without prior notice to Policyholder. The actual amount and number of years applicable to regular withdrawal are dependent on the actual amount of the non-guaranteed Special Bonus payable under the policy.
 11. The Special Bonus is a non-guaranteed payment made at the Company's discretion.

Things to keep in mind when retiring overseas

Retirement is an important milestone on your life journey. Even if you choose to stay where you are for your retirement, careful planning is a must. If you're retiring to an overseas location, there will be more challenges along the way.

Buying a property

Different laws and systems in other countries mean that there are many issues you need to be mindful of when purchasing an overseas property, especially with regard to ownership right. In the UK, for example, most detached houses offered for sale come with permanent ownership. After the buyer has become the permanent owner of a plot of land and the structure built upon it, however, all repairs and maintenance costs are their sole responsibility. If you own a leasehold property, on the other hand, you are required to lease the plot of land from the permanent owner. The duration of a lease can be anywhere from 99 to 999 years. Generally, the less time is left on the lease, the lower the value of the property. This could affect its resale or mortgage value in the future¹.

Consider using an international bank with an overseas banking network. A prime example is HSBC Global Banking, which provides one-stop services including support for overseas mortgage applications. However, you'd still need to consider factors such as exchange rate fluctuations, possible insufficient mortgage and mortgage rates.

In addition, find out if the mortgage services provided by your bank are subject to geographical restrictions, that is, if the services cover properties worldwide. Some banks only service UK properties, while others only cover Japan and Australia.

1. EDigest - UK Property Buying Guide

Healthcare

As you reach retirement age, you will typically start spending more on healthcare than you used to. Hong Kong has a fairly well-developed medical system, and locals can obtain medical services at public hospitals and clinics at reasonable prices. If you're overseas, on the other hand, the medical facilities may be advanced but the fees can be very high, especially in places like the US and Europe. So before you decide to retire overseas, learn more about the healthcare system and medical costs in the destination of your choice. Consider also the necessary arrangements for seeking medical attention in case of illness. If you have a Hong Kong medical insurance policy or plan to buy one, check to see if it provides overseas coverage.

Tax

Many destinations, such as Taiwan, Canada, the UK and Australia, have a worldwide tax system. That's why even if you're abroad but still own assets in Hong Kong, you'll need to file tax returns and pay capital tax on these assets to the government of your host country or territory. For details, please consult professional tax consultants.

Adjusting to your new life

Leaving the place where you've been living for so long is not without its challenges, especially if you've reached retirement age. Before you can fully embrace life in a foreign location, a transition period is often needed.

Expand your social circle

Open yourself to the culture and lifestyle of your retirement destination. It's a good idea to start with the local cuisine and TV programmes.

Unless you need to sell your Hong Kong property before your departure, you can continue to manage your assets here through internet banking or an appointed third party.

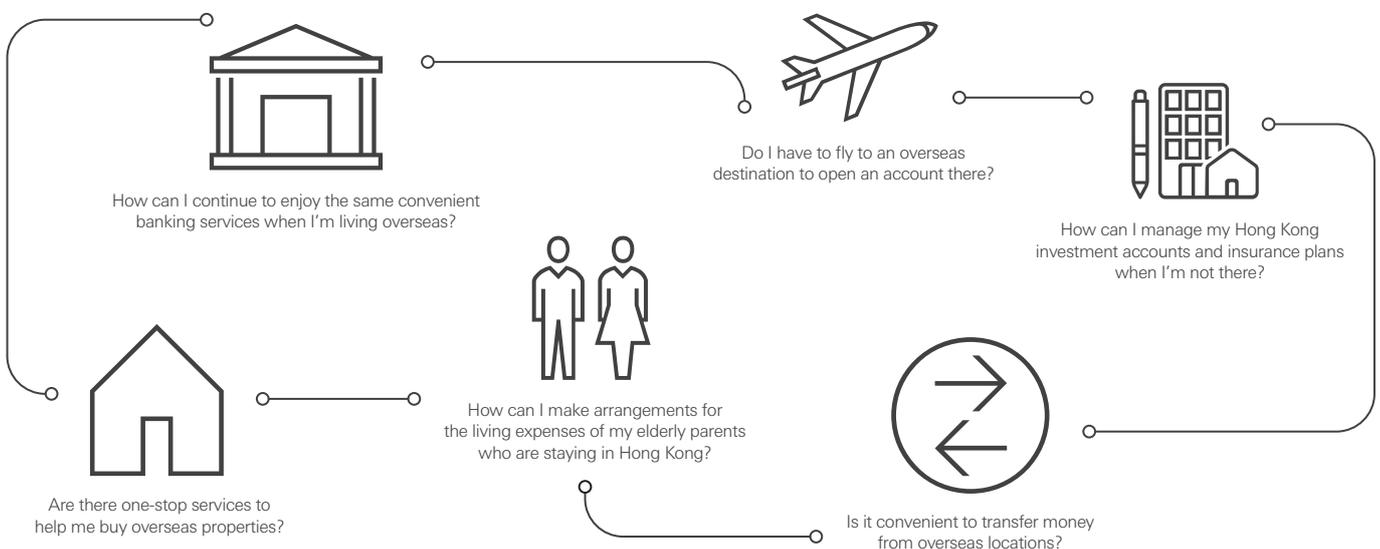

The internet has eliminated distance. Keep in touch with family and friends through video-enabled apps or other tools. That would help a lot when you're missing your hometown.

Global banking services

Manage your finances across borders with ease

Life is full of pleasant surprises, and your journey could take you to a different place for a rewarding new life. But being overseas all the time, you need a comprehensive set of services to give you long-distance control of all your finances. With HSBC Global Banking, you'll enjoy all-points, all-round support no matter where you are, including worldwide HSBC Premier services, overseas property acquisition solutions, privileged access to our international banking divisions and more.
