Risk Disclosure

- ◆ Bonds are mainly medium to long term fixed income products, not for short term speculation. You should be prepared to hold your funds in bonds for the full tenor; you could lose part or all of your principal if you choose to sell bonds prior to maturity
- ◆ It is the issuer to pay interest and repay principal of bonds. If the issuer defaults, the holder of bonds may not be able to receive back the interest and principal. The holder of bonds bears the credit risk of the issuer and has no recourse to HSBC unless HSBC is the issuer itself
- ◆ Indicative price of bonds are available and bonds price do fluctuate when market changes. Factors affecting market price of bonds include, and are not limited to, fluctuations in Interest Rates, Credit Spreads, and Liquidity Premiums. The fluctuation in yield generally has a greater effect on prices of longer tenor bonds. There is an inherent risk that losses may be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling bonds
- ◆ If you wish to sell Bonds, HSBC may repurchase it based on the prevailing market price under normal market circumstances, but the selling price may differ from the original buying price due to changes in market conditions
- ◆ There may be exchange rate risks if you choose to convert payments made on bonds to your home currency
- ◆ The secondary market for bonds may not provide significant liquidity or may trade at prices based on the prevailing market conditions and may not be in line with the expectations of holders of bonds
- ◆ If bonds are early redeemed, you may not be able to enjoy the same rates of return when you use the funds to purchase other products

Additional risk for Renminbi (RMB) products

- ◆ There may be exchange rate risks if you choose to convert RMB payments made on the bonds to your home currency
- ◆ RMB debt instruments are subject to interest rate fluctuations, which may adversely affect the return and performance of the RMB products
- ◆ RMB products may suffer significant losses in liquidating the underlying investments if such investments do not have an active secondary market and their prices have large bid/ offer spreads
- ◆ You could lose part or all of your principal if you choose to sell your RMB bonds prior to maturity

Risk Disclosure

Additional risk for High Yield bonds

- ◆ In general, the bonds are either unrated or non-investment graded. The bonds may have a higher yield than investment graded bonds, however, they present greater risks with respect to liquidity, volatility, vulnerability to economic cycles and non-payment of principal and coupon. They incur a greater degree of credit risk relative to other fixed income securities
- ◆ The bonds are subject to greater default risk of the Issuer and the Credit support provider than other investment graded bonds due to higher credit risk of the Issuer and the Credit support provider and lower priority of claim by the bondholders. Various factors may affect the ability of the Issuer and the Credit support provider to perform its obligations, including but not limited to poor management, changes in management, failure to anticipate shifts in the Issuer's market, rising costs of raw materials, regulations and new competition. Events that adversely affect a whole industry can have a blanket effect on the bonds of its members
- ◆ Bonds which are cross-border issues which have no recovery history for offshore bondholders claiming right domestically. Therefore, in case of default, the time required for claim on corporate assets in a liquidation distribution may be longer than investment graded bonds due to lower priority of claim and the domestic restrictions on the bondholders' right to claim
- ◆ The market value of the bonds are more sensitive to factors such as variations in the Issuer's financial conditions, the Issuer's developments involving its business and changes thereof applicable to the Issuer's industry. The bonds are subject to vulnerability to economic cycles, in particular, the bonds are more vulnerable to the general economic condition than investment graded bonds. During an economic downturn, the bonds will typically lose more principal value and thus subject to greater price volatility than investment graded bonds as a result of an increase in default risk and as investors become more risk adverse
- ◆ If the bonds are rated, the relevant credit rating agencies may downgrade the relevant rating of the bonds at any time. In some cases, the market anticipates downgrades by bidding down prices prior to the actual rating agency announcement. Before such downgrade of rating, the relevant credit rating agencies may place the bonds on a "creditwatch" status, which may adversely affect the market price of the bonds
- ◆ Liquidity refers to the investor's ability to sell a bond quickly and at an efficient price, as reflected in the bid-ask spread. A difference may exist between the price buyers are bidding and the prices sellers are asking. For largely and actively traded bond, the gap is often smaller, producing greater liquidity. The bonds may be less liquid than investment graded bonds, depending on the Issuer and the market conditions at any given time
- ◆ Please be aware the concentration risk of investing in bonds issued by the same issuer or companies by the same group. A degrading of any of the group company's credit rating may expose the whole group to contagion risk. Please be also aware the risk of over concentrating investment in the high risk investment products
- ◆ Please refer to the "High Yield Bond Fact Sheet" for further details of the features and risks of High Yield bonds.

Additional risk for Subordinated Bonds/Notes

- ◆ Subordinated debentures will bear higher risks than senior debentures of the issuer due to a lower priority of claim in the event of the issuer's liquidation and Noteholders will not receive any repayment until after all senior creditors have been repaid in full.
- ◆ Please be aware the concentration risk of investing in bonds issued by the same issuer or companies by the same group. A degrading of any of the group company's credit rating may expose the whole group to contagion risk. Please be also aware the risk of over concentrating investment in the high risk investment products.

Additional Risk Factors for Perpetual Bonds

- ◆ Perpetual debentures do not have fixed maturity dates. Noteholders might not receive principal repayment unless the issue exercises the right to call or to redeem the debenture. The market price of perpetual bonds ("Fixed for life") are more sensitive to interest rate changes compared to fixed rate bonds with fixed maturity dates.
- ◆ Perpetual debentures often are callable and are subordinated. Investors may incur reinvestment and subordination risks. Investors may lose all their invested principal in certain circumstances. Interest payments may be variable, deferred or cancelled. Investors may face uncertainties over when and how much they can receive such payments.
- ◆ Please be aware of the concentration risk of investing in bonds issued by the same issuer or companies by the same group. A degrading of any of the group company's credit rating may expose the whole group to contagion risk. Please be also aware of the risk of over concentrating investment in the high risk investment products.
- ◆ Please refer to the "Fact Sheet for Perpetual / Loss Absorbing Capacity debts " for further details of the features and risks of Perpetual Bonds.

Additional Risk Factors for Bonds/Notes issued by Financial Institutions

- ◆ The issuer may be subject to a resolution regime, now or in future, which gives the relevant authority powers to control and manage the risks to the financial system if financial institutions start to face difficulties or fail. The issuer or the relevant authority may, without the need for the consent of the holders of the Notes, irrevocably effect a full or partial write-off of the outstanding principal amount and/ or interest, or convert the Notes into ordinary shares (or similar instruments) in full or in part, subject to the relevant authorities, when the Issuer is deemed to be no longer viable (or the Issuer may not be able to continue its operations or performance). As a results, the circumstances in which the Notes may need to bear loss and the market price of the instrument are hard to predict and you may lose part of or all your investment.

Additional Risk Factors for Total-Loss Absorbing Capacity ("TLAC") eligible Bonds/Notes

- ◆ TLAC-eligible instruments may be subject to loss absorption if the issuer becomes or is deemed to have become unable to continue its regulated banking activities under times of severe stress. These instruments include subordinated debt securities issued by banks, future senior unsecured debt securities and, under specific conditions, existing (already labelled as such) senior unsecured debt. Only banks classified as Global Systematically Important Banks (GSIBs) are required to issue TLAC-eligible instruments.
- ◆ The implementation of an orderly resolution remains at the discretion of the relevant national/ regional regulatory authority. As a result, the value of TLAC-eligible instruments may be reduced, including to zero (i.e. principal write-down / write-off), or converted into instruments that constitute common equity tier 1 capital for the issuer, such as ordinary shares (i.e. regulatory bail-in). However, as the regulations relating to TLAC may not yet be finalized in some jurisdictions, the circumstances surrounding and triggering the resolution measures may not be predictable.
- ◆ Please also note that each TLAC-eligible instrument is unique and can differ from the main outlines above. In addition, specific country/ regional requirements may apply and extremely limited liquidity can occur under adverse market conditions. Therefore, you should read the risk factors and consider all relevant terms and conditions including without limitation the offering document for each TLAC-eligible instrument you invest in.
- ◆ Please be aware of the concentration risk of investing in bonds issued by the same issuer or companies by the same group. A degrading of any of the group company's credit rating may expose the whole group to contagion risk. Please be also aware of the risk of over concentrating investment in the high risk investment products.
- ◆ Please refer to the "Fact Sheet for Perpetual / Loss Absorbing Capacity debts " for further details of the features and risks of Total-Loss Absorbing Capacity ("TLAC") eligible Bonds/ Notes.

Additional Risks for Callable Bonds/Notes

- ◆ Bonds/Notes with Callable Features
The Bonds/Notes are embedded with selling option(s) to the Issuer, which give the Issuer a right (but not the obligation) to call and early redeem the Bonds/Notes prior to maturity date (please refer to the offering documentation of the Bonds/Notes for details). If the Issuer exercises its right to redeem the Bonds/Notes before they mature, you may suffer a substantial loss under the Bonds/Notes and you may not be able to enjoy the same rates of return when you re-invest the amount received under such early redemption in other investments with similar risk parameters.
- ◆ Bonds/Notes subject to Optional Redemption upon Specific Events (e.g. Change of Control)
The Issuer may not have enough available funds at the time of the occurrence of any specific events (please refer to the offering documents for details) to make purchases of outstanding Notes, and the Issuer's failure to repurchase will constitute an event of default under the Bonds/Notes and may constitute an event of default under other indebtedness of the Issuer.

Additional Risks for Bonds/Notes with Keepwell Deed/Agreement

- ◆ The Trustee (a party appointed by the Issuer which acts on behalf of the Noteholders) is able to enforce the Keepwell deed/agreement on behalf of Noteholders (please refer to the offering documents for details), but this is only for the parent company to pay money to the Issuer and not directly to the Noteholders, it is not a guarantee. In addition, performance by the parent company may be subject to obtaining necessary local consents.

Additional Risks for Bonds/Notes with Standby Letter of Credit (SBLC)

- ◆ The total sum payable may be limited under the Standby Letter of Credit agreement by the Bank in circumstances and on demand by the Trustee (a party appointed by the Issuer which acts on behalf of the Noteholders) (please refer to the offering documents for details).

Additional Risks for Bonds/Notes subject to variable interest and/or deferral of coupon payment and/or dividend stopper

- ◆ Some bonds have variable interest payment terms that can be reset based upon specific market indicators. Such bonds would result in investors facing uncertainty over the amount and time of interest payments to be received. The reset coupon rate may be lower than the initial coupon and the return may be adversely impacted.
- ◆ Some bonds allow the issuer to defer payment of interests in whole or in part for a period of time under certain conditions, either cumulative or non-cumulative. Such bonds would result in investors facing uncertainty over the amount and time of interest payments to be received. If deferral is non-cumulative, investors carry the risk of not getting any returns on the investment. If deferral is cumulative, the issuer will be required to pay investors the deferred amount on a later payment date.
